"Lies. All Lies." is a quirky piece of workshopped theatre, which dabbles in the art of denial and deceit. Unique characters, each with their own story to tell, find themselves united in more ways than one, as separate journeys unfold, and raw, real human traits become exposed.

"A divorcee ramps up his online dating profile"

"A life-guru leads seminar attendees into sincerity"

"A liar confronts his truthful character on stage"

"A rapper in a world torn apart by institutionalised lies"

"A daughter in denial confesses to her shrink"

Through a mish-mash of styles, from a series of monologues to slam poetry and physical theatre, each moment weaves together a powerful performance that certainly packs a punch... and a good few laughs.

Performed by graduates of East 15 Acting School's MA/MFA programme, the actors bring a mix of nationalities and global flavour to the stage, scrutinizing a universal theme while navigating their way through an individual struggle with their inner selves.

So come and join the action - breathe deeply as your pupils pulsate and your heart-rate climbs. Who knew lying could be such fun?
